Over seven million people live under the control of US prison and parole systems. The vast majority of them are people of colour or youth. Between 2000 and 2007, Congress added 454 new offences to the criminal code. In comparison, Blair added 3000 new laws during his leadership. The UK prison population is similarly skewed in terms of race and class. For a decade, Critical Resistance has organised to abolish the reliance on imprisonment, policing and surveillance. Reflecting on key themes of Dismantle, Change and Build, this book celebrates their bold strategies and work.

What in life truly defines a diva? Steel City Diva brings this definition into reality. Alexis grew up in a church going family with strong values. Growing up her parents did everything they could to prevent her from seeing the grimy parts of the streets. Unfortunately, while her mother tried to keep her life together Alexis broke away and turned extremely wild. She begins to see what her mother was trying to keep her from when she ends up pregnant at fifteen. Now she's crossed the path of adulthood into the streets only to dig deeper and deeper. Alexis finds herself hiding bruises and covering up for a man she believes truly loves her. Putting him first and giving her only son away to her mother will she ever learn? Life takes an even bigger toll on her when she takes a pain killer and is introduced to her drug of choice. With all of this going on Alexis finds herself trying to avoid all of her problems by pushing them to the back of her head. Little does she know pushing them to the back of her head doesn't make them go away. Alexis looses all hope for anything and has not an ounce of desire to live. It was so easy for her to get to this point with no idea how to get out. Will Alexis ever acquire her desire to live and appreciate life again? Or have the streets taken her so far under she couldn't see the lights even if she wanted to? My name is Latasha R. Lane and I was born and raised in Gary, Indiana. I am twenty five years old and married with three wonderful little boys. Before writing I worked in the financial industry for 7 years. During these seven years I moved away from Gary, Indiana to Indianapolis, IN. With my always wanting more out of life attitude I enrolled in college where I am currently pursuing a degree in psychology. With all these changes in my life I discontinued employment from the financial industry to find myself. After searching for myself I started to pursue my desire to write. While pursuing my desires I began to write Steel City Diva hoping that I would be able to share my thoughts with many people.
